My dear Friend

I have concluded not to trouble thee with any list of deserving contributors - We can manage in some way our selves with the books I have ordered. As to the subscriptions from Ireland for the Herald, Liberator, & Standard, they will doubt be balanced by the people of the Dublin Irish boxes. The letter owing to some blunders in Cal ^{has been delayed} will ~~not~~ ^{be} till the present voyage. I hope the contents will be in time for the fair, and that by the next mail I may be able to send a regular return of every thing that I have had to do with. M. C. W. is here and ready work to L. 2's content and working himself. He is by no means strong & does not go out in damp weather or by night. The political world is looked till the track come on, the 15th of next month. Rogers is right in his estimate of respect & no respect - so far as the people are concerned. I think I write for some of Whittier's Poems. I hope an invoice will be sent with them that I may know what is to pay. How is Abby Kelley & where is she? She is one of the objects of my hero worship. This is a short scribble to send so far - but you will be tired of my scrawls by this time. Among the packets by L. C. D. is a pencil rolled up & directed to W. P. H. Open it, and you will be amused. It is a ~~fine~~ portrait of my noble self. You can then send it on for Rogers's delectation.

Thine in haste
